ABSTRACT

A method and apparatus for a read barrier mechanism are described. According to an embodiment, a method comprises receiving an access request for a program object; performing a combined check for a null reference or for a read barrier for the program object; and if the combined check is affirmative, performing a recovery operation.